

PORTRAITS OF A DANCER

These photographs explore the dancer as a person who chooses to dance, rather than a person with outstanding technical dance abilities. While most dance photography is commonly known to depict dancers at their fullest mastery, I'm interested in understanding and depicting the silent moments that fuel the strength that it takes to get to such point. These portraits are a result of an honest relationship with each person, a product of conversations and my desire to understand how their practice and struggles relate to mine.

Dancers: Catherine Long, Rachael Maragoudakis, Courtney Ay, Elizabeth Terschuur, Maggie Strawley, Kendra Smith, and Samantha Beary.
